H. C. HOWARD

Urged to Make the Race for Representative in Bourbon.

Former County Judge H. Clay Howard, of Paris, is having strong pressure brought to bear upon him to make the race for Representative against Hal Woodford, the Democratic nominee. Judge Howard is an uncompromising Republican, an able lawyer and a gentleman and will if he decides to make the race be a strong candidate.

The above is taken from the Lexington Leader.

Judge Howard was born and raised in this county and we bear witness of the statement of the special, "uncompromising Republican, able lawyer and gentleman."

Prof. Everett Dix has been nominated as a candidate for the Legislature by the Republicans of Bracken county. He would be for Bradley for U. S. Senator.

Dr. Milton Board, acting chairman of the Speakers' Bureau, is busily engaged in arranging new dates for speakers. Many of the best Democratic speakers in the State are offering their services in the campaign. Senator James B. Returns to Family After 19 Months.

Reunited after an absence of nineteen months, Nannie Claypole Wood, of Paris, was overcome with joy when her husband, Robert Wood, who mysteriously disappeared on the night of February 2, 1906, greeted her and her two children at the residence of Dr. Margaret C. Wood, where she was employed as housekeeper.

Mr. Wood was a brakeman in the employ of the Louisville & Nashville railroad and was happily residing with his little family. On the night of his disappearance as above referred to, he affectionately kissed his wife and little ones and left to go out on his regular trip to Corbin, Ky., and was due as was his custom to return the second day. Failing to show up, his wife made inquiries of his whereabouts without the slightest information that could account for his absence. Days, weeks and months went by and no tidings of the absent husband and father came to relieve the worry of the almost distracted woman.

The aid of railroad officials and the detective department of the road was invoked in an effort to solve the problem of Mr. Wood's absence, but without avail. Section men along the road from Paris to Corbin were required to make a search for his body as it was believed he met his death by being thrown from his train. No tidings came of the many efforts to solve the mystery, when family and friends began to realize that he had possibly met with foul play.

Without the aid and support of her husband, Mrs. Wood was compelled to seek employment and found a home as housekeeper. When Mr. Wood arrived in Paris from California, where he holds a like position with a western railroad, he was informed of his family's whereabouts and going to their home was met at the door by his little daughter who, recognizing her father, clasped him about the neck and cried "Oh Papa." Mr. Wood, who will return to California with his family, declined to explain the cause of his long absence.

PREWITT

Proposes Uniform Tax System For Life Insurance.

At the session of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners at Richmond, Va., September 8, the resolution of Commissioner Henry R. Prewitt, of Kentucky, for a uniform tax system hit a popular chord and directed attention to the injustice of the present plan. The resolution declared that the question was one of great importance and danger; that it was onerous on a particular class, and was really penalizing insurance consumers; that, inasmuch as the expense had to be borne by the consumers, the old laws acted as a penalty upon policy holders.

Mr. Prewitt's resolution called for the appointment of a special committee of seven to take the subject under consideration, and that the committee be directed to ascertain the amount of taxes in various States; to make a comparison between insurance taxation and that on other branches of business, and then recommend that a uniform tax system be enacted which would prove to be fair.

During the course of his address, Mr. Darwin P. Kingley, president of the New York Life, highly commended the resolution of the Kentucky Commissioner.

This resolution is evidence that Mr. Prewitt is working at his State business, giving much time and thought to it.

Preachers Hear Judge Hager.

Prominent in the audience this morning were several of the ministers of Barbourville, and they were attentive listeners to Judge Hager when he defined his position in favor of a county unit law which will extend to every county in the State. These views caught the crowd and the Democrats say that the speech gained the Democratic ticket many votes in Knox county.

Judge Hager, John K. Hendrick candidate for Attorney General, and the Courier-Journal correspondent were guests to-day at Barbourville of Judge J. C. Black, one of the best-known Democrats in Kentucky, and were entertained at dinner at his handsome home. The candidates were met at the depot by Democrats of Barbourville and taken to the hotel in buggies. At the courthouse the Barbourville band was playing and the town resembled a Democratic stronghold, instead of being in one of the biggest Republican counties in the State.—Courier-Journal.

HAGER MAKES FRIENDS IN KNOX.

Attitude On Temperance Pleases Republicans.

Knox county, which is for prohibition and votes against saloons always by a large majority, was represented in large numbers at Corbin, Ky., by its citizens, who turned out to hear what the Democratic candidate for Governor had to say on the temperance question. They had heard the Republican candidate only a short time ago, and it is generally understood in Barbourville that they were not satisfied with the position taken by A. E. Willson. Judge S. W. Hager defined his position so clearly that there were shouts of approval, and these shouts came from Republicans as well as Democrats.

When Mr. Willson spoke in Barbourville a committee of ministers numbering about a dozen called on the Republican candidate and asked him to define his position on the temperance question. Mr. Willson told them that he was a temperance man himself, but that he did not favor wiping out an industry like the whisky business. He would not modify his views and took practically the opposite stand from that occupied by the Democrats. The delegation of ministers went away unsatisfied and feeling that they could not support Willson.

Big Failure.

The failure of the Broice-Grogan Lumber Co., of Lexington, including other larger plants in different states, was more severe than at first reported. About $1,500,000 is now involved. The Lexington plant was a small part of the enterprise.
